Application for a Probationary Licence with an Alcohol Ignition Interlock Condition

(under Part 3A.2 of the Road Transport (Driver Licensing) Regulation 2000)

Mandatory/ Voluntary Interlock Device Information

Mandatory interlock licence condition

You are required to have an interlock condition on your probationary licence if, on or after 17 June 2014 you are convicted or found guilty of an alcohol related disqualifying offence:

- of exceeding a prescribed concentration of alcohol (a BAC offence) and your BAC was 0.15 grams or more; or
- of refusing to provide a breath or blood sample in relation to alcohol; or
- you have convictions for two or more alcohol-related disqualifying offences in the previous 5 years; and
- your licence is disqualified.

A probationary licence with a mandatory interlock condition cannot be issued until half your disqualification period has been served.

A probationary licence with an interlock condition cannot be issued if you are otherwise disqualified from holding or obtaining a driver licence.

I understand that if I am subject to a mandatory interlock licence condition, in addition to demonstrated compliance for a three month period, I must have complied with any court-ordered therapeutic program under section 73U of the Regulation, in order to be issued a driver licence without an interlock condition.

Voluntary interlock licence condition

If you are convicted of a BAC offence on or after 17 June 2014, but are not a person to whom the mandatory interlock licence condition applies, you can apply to be issued with a probationary licence with an interlock condition immediately the court imposes a disqualification period provided you are not otherwise disqualified from holding or obtaining a driver licence. You must also complete an Alcohol or Drug Awareness Course (ADAC) before you can be issued with a Probationary Licence.

A probationary licence with an interlock condition cannot be issued if you are otherwise disqualified from holding or obtaining a driver licence.

I understand that demonstrated compliance for a three month period is a requirement to end my interlock period, whether I am subject to a mandatory or voluntary interlock licence condition.

I understand that the interlock period ends 6 months from the date the interlock condition is imposed or at the end of the disqualification period, whichever is the later.

Interlock Program Conditions and Breaches

I understand that my interlock period will be extended if the Road Transport Authority (RTA) receives advice that, I have:

- driven a nominated vehicle fitted with an interlock without first providing a sample of my breath;
- driven a nominated vehicle when I knew, or ought reasonably to have known, that the vehicle's interlock was not operating properly or had been interfered with eg. at a time when the battery was disconnected;
- driven a nominated motor vehicle with an interlock which has been fitted by other than an approved interlock installer;
- driven a vehicle other than my nominated vehicle fitted with an interlock.

I understand that my interlock period will be extended if, during the last three months of my interlock period, any of the following breaches are recorded on my interlock record:

- failure to take a running re-test;
- a start-up breath sample BAC of 0.02 or more; or
- more than one start-up breath sample BAC with any level of alcohol detected.

I understand that if my interlock period is extended due to a breach in the last three months of my interlock period, that the extension will continue until I demonstrate compliance with the requirements of the Regulation, including the requirement for my interlock record to show no breaches for a three month period.

Approved alcohol interlock providers

The alcohol ignition interlock device installed in your nominated vehicle must be an interlock device approved by the RTA and installed by an approved alcohol interlock installer. Details of suppliers of approved interlock devices can be obtained from the Access Canberra website at <http://accesscanberra.act.gov.au>
